

SPRING EQUINOX

After the long summer last year, the sun got tired. She started sleeping more and more, until Winter Solstice, when she barely got out of bed. But the rest did her good. On Spring Equinox, she will spend equal amounts of time shining and resting. She is glad to be back with us and getting ready for another summer of fun. Color the sun in bright and cheerful colors and hang her in your window to let her know how happy you are that she is here.
