

Bush-wacked!

Everybody thinks that it's impossible that a president would use the United States military for a personal vendetta. I have to admit that the idea sounded preposterous- even to me. But now that it is plainly clear that Saddam Hussein did not have these weapons, I'm afraid that I must ask the question. Did George W. Bush sacrifice our Nations men and women simply for revenge? I read that Saddam had once threatened to kill his father and his wife. Why would Saddam threaten to kill his wife? That doesn't even make sense. Saddam to George Bush Sr: "I will kill you and your daughter in law!" Please! Even on the Sopranos they say: "I will kill you and your family".

Of course now they are saying that because they stopped this evil dictator, everything's well in the world. Did capturing Saddam Hussein stop the pilfering of these so called weapons? Was Saddam himself a weapon of mass destruction? Did he have a secret stash of anthrax stuck up his butt? I know a lot of men think that they are harboring a weapon of mass destruction in their pants, but I can assure you that it's mostly delusions of grandeur. The only destruction most can master is on their ego.

They even sent a great ape- dubbed the Patriot ape- into Saddam's cell, in the hopes of finding something incriminating. She groomed through his beard for a while until she finally found something. They were all so excited at the prospect of telling the world that they finally found the elusive weapons. But even with a team of scientists on the case, and after extensive testing, unfortunately it turned out to be just a few old bits of dried up pita bread ! Back to the drawing board.

This administration seems to think that we are all idiots. That we aren't smart enough to figure out when we are being lied to. Yes, this may be a Jerry Springer world, but although most that go on Jerry Springer don't have an education, they sure as hell know bullshit when it's being spued on there foot. We know SHADY! One minute they never had a meeting on how to go about toppling Saddam's regime(before the attacks), the next minute, " Oh yea, we did have that meeting but it wasn't exactly about that ". Please. That sounds like something Bill Clinton would say. Only more convincing - or at least a hell of lot more benign. Hmm, didn't we impeach him for lying? But I guess it's not the same thin when you lie about a war compared to lying about a whore.

Bill's mistake was having a woman go down on him. I know when to open my mouth, and when to keep it shut! Even if they caught me on video- under the oval office- I still would never tell. I'd say: "What? I was just tying the presidential shoelaces".

But I digress. Saddam does not have any weapons. Don't you think if he did have these weapons that he would have used them when we invaded? What's the use of hiding them? Use them! Hello! But not one scud - dud was plugged in. He had them in the Gulf war. But not one was used this time around. Talk about pathetic. I almost felt embarrassed for him. ALMOST. He just hopped in a hole and fed off the rabbit that inhabited it before him until we gophered him out. Victory! We got him! At what price? Of human lives.

Bush didn't say that we must help the people of Iraq. That we must stop this evil tyrant from continuing his reign of terror. If he did I might have more respect for him. But he didn't. He said that Saddam was stockpiling weapons of mass destruction and was an eminent threat to America and the world. Then he had Colin Powell go on tv and point to a bunch of traveling falafel carts claiming they contained chemical weapons. Who knew? Maybe we should check sidewalk vendors here in America for chemical weapons. That might explain why the food tastes so bad. "Anthrax dog anyone"?

I think the world can forgive us of making a terrible mistake by electing George W. Bush, but I don't think they will forgive us of re-electing George W. Bush.