OUR PLEDGE AND RIGHTS

ሙሉቀን ሙጪ
Muluken Muchie

True, we Ethiopian origins are decedents of an ancient civilization and the most acclaimed history of mankind. Yes, we have inherited uninterrupted social legacy of more than three thousand years; but, our characteristics and values should be measured by our social functions and deeds where they currently occupy time and space; positive social background and history may assist to build upon ones social relations and participation, but it is up to us now to reshape and bind our past to help us serve our time in different places and mixes. In this period of global residency, just like other social groups Ethiopian origins have made their habitation in many parts of the world. Due to the catalyst of many factors, a large number of Ethiopians are out of their native country and resettled almost in every corner of the world.

Among the preferred countries of resettlement for the Ethiopian Diaspora, Canada is the beloved destination. Ethiopian immigration to Canada has begun in the early 80's and increasingly continued to this day. In addition to the story we knew from far away about the Canadian snow, the great lakes and oceans, early immigrants of Ethiopians had also learned about Canada at schools and from news; we heard about the Canadian democratic system, its richness and being a just society. The image Canada built by its international peacekeeping role, the news of its model of multiculturalism, the balanced economic and political system which takes care of the vital interest of its citizens, etc.. were reasons helped Ethiopians eager to make Canada their home away home. We Ethiopian origins came in and joined the Canadian mosaic with our historical treasure, law abiding tradition, respectfulness and loyalty of order. We pledged to honor the good fabric of Canada and swore to make its survival our destiny. In return, we are granted to equal rights and participation to grow and prosper; we are entitled to retain our heritage and trace our background. For our heritage connects us back to our Ethiopian origin we cherish, we have an interest to look after the wellbeing of our families and friends who still live in Ethiopia. It is our desire peace and order prevailed in Ethiopia where in democratic and human rights are respected.

Ethiopia is the second populous country in Africa with its estimated 80 million people. A national election is scheduled on May 23,2010. The whole world knows what happened in the last election took place in 2005: election results were undermined and manipulated to the winning interest of the ruling party and as a result an uproar of public opposition was the essence of the time; it is suffice to refer to many reports of well-known international Human Rights organizations through the years: during the 2005 election about 200 innocent citizens were gun down by the government's security forces, the 2009 U.S State department Human Rights report has an extensive data on Human rights violations in Ethiopia; it reported Security forces committed arbitrary and politically motivated killings during the year, occurrences of disappearances and quoted the independent Ethiopian Human Rights Council (EHRC) reporting 80,974 persons were in prison. Many opposition leaders are languishing in prison, among them is Ms. Birtukan Midekissa, leader of the Unity for Democracy and Justice Party (UDJ), the free press is muzzled down and many of the journalists are either in prison or left the country. In preview of these developments since the last election, the vast majority of Ethiopians in country or abroad are very much worried of what the upcoming May 2010 election has in store for the democratic process. Thus, Ethiopian Canadians bring this troubling news to the attention of the Canadian government to do its best in helping the community.

Canada is blessed of having all peoples of different origins; in this regard it has a massive resource to use when it comes to international diplomacy and economic interests. Canadians speak almost all world languages and know every part of the world. Thus, it is Canada's best interest to listen and act when its proud citizenry ambassadors bring credible news from all over the world to its attention. It is noted that Canadians of different origins always want to see their back home to be peaceful and healthy because the least they want their families be safe and as their bigger goal they want to see their homelands respected and prosperous; they need to trade with their fellows by importing and exporting goods and services to achieve their share of Canadian dream.

Peace and stability are the pillars of social relation and integration; in order to achieve them, democratic and human rights shall be maximized to the higher satisfaction level. Canadians are the true army of democracy and human rights; we should keep up raising our voices for all against injustice because our social, political and economic interests are all over. We should stand against extremism actions and behaviors from all directions; the will of the people and rules of law set by the people or its democratic representatives must be the binding force to keep us together and guide us to the common purpose.

CANADIAN COOKING

COME TO CANADA WITH A SENSE OF HUMOUR

By Bob Cook

If you're reading this newspaper, Hawarya, there's a good chance you're new to Canada, which means we have to get a few things straight. First off you've had to find a place to live; then you had to find work and then you had to find your way around your community, your region your province. This can take time and since I have never had to do any of those things in a new country I will only say that it must be a daunting task and you are in a word "remarkable." You are just the kind of people Canada needs.

I was born in Canada so I've never had to take on a new world but I have seen this country go from a very WASPY place in the fifties and sixties to today's multicultural wonderland.

So if you're new to this country or you've been here a while and don't quite understand what it means to be "Canadian" then let me explain it in a word "humour."

Not everyone has a sense of humour but no matter where you come from laughing is an integral part of living life here on earth. And Canada's humour has a distinctive quality to it, which makes it something we've exported around the world. From Russell Peters and Michael J. Fox to Wayne and Shuster Canadians have been making the world laugh for a very long time and why we do needs some explaining.

First off Canada is big. When you look at a map the mere size of Canada shocks someone who has just arrived from Sumatra or Madagascar. Your first laugh as a Canadian is when you realize that your friend was wrong when he said that it was a three-day walk from Toronto to Vancouver.

Second laugh the weather. There are days in January and February when the sun does not shine on this country that has 6 time zones. It's even funnier telling someone from Ethiopia that the sun will not be seen till June when it's only January 8th?

Then there is that laugh you get when you realize that coming to Canada means you're not American. No matter where you're from you heard a lot more about America than you did Canada and it's not until you're here that you realize it's not anything like America even though we're right next door.

First off Canadians don't like themselves like Americans do, which is funny since the country is almost twice as big geographically.

We also have fewer people so each one of us can take up more room, which is very cool if you've just come from a place where people are stacked and packed.

We're also very good at laughing at ourselves, which is something other parts of the world just don't do especially the places that treat people badly. What's that about?

Other Canadian laughing points include "hockey." It's a game played with sticks on ice and if we lose we just start crying, which by the way doesn't happen too often. "Bilingualism", it's officially English & French but most people who come here usually know more than one language anyway, which usually leads them to ask why the French here doesn't sound like the French anywhere else? Which makes ME laugh because I don't speak French "any" way.

There are many other things that make Canadians "funny to watch" and "funny to listen to" but what isn't funny is the stand this country takes against people and countries that have no sense of humour.

Throughout our history this country has gone to war because some countries want to make their people cry instead of laugh and Canada doesn't like that. We've never like that because we believe that laughing is the first way to making the world a better place and right now there is no better place on earth to live than Canada. I thank you for choosing Canada and I hope someday I'm able to meet up with some of you and have a "laugh" Canadian style, which by the way is pretty unique, just like you.

the Kurdish people in Iraq including the poison gas attack against Halabja on March 16, 1988, the destruction of Iraqi Kurdish villages and the systematic persecution of Kurds in Iraq and condemn these acts as crimes against humanity.

OTTAWA – The Honourable Jim Karygiannis, Member of Parliament for Scarborough-Agincourt, expressed his heartfelt thanks to all Members of Parliament for passing Motion M-505 with respect to the poisonous gas attack on Halabja, Iraq and other atrocities committed by Saddam Hussein.

“Twenty-two years ago today, the Town of Halabja suffered a poisonous gas bombardment.” said

Mr. Karygiannis. “I had the great privilege of presenting this Motion and I am deeply grateful to all Members of the House for understanding its significance to members of the Canadian Kurdish community and for their unanimous support.”

Motion M-505 reads as follows:

That this House acknowledge the actions of Saddam Hussein against

“In 2009, when I visited the Monument of Halabja Martyrs, I told the survivors that I would ask the House of Commons to declare the actions of the Saddam Hussein government against the Kurdish people to be a crime against humanity.

Today, thanks to all Members of Parliament, I was able to keep my promise.” Mr. Karygiannis stated. “Governments are supposed to protect their citizens. The attacks on the Kurdish people were the act of a madman and monster.”

CANADIAN DOCTOR HOSTS GLOBAL CONFERENCE THAT MAY HELP "CURE THE INCURABLE"

STEM CELL GLOBAL BLUEPRINT CONFERENCE MAY 2010

Attributed to Muluken Muchie, Wei Lem

Toronto --"Community outreach," The "global village." These are concepts very much part of today's lexicon amongst the readers of our Hawarya, one of the first and oldest Ethiopian African newspaper groups established in North America. Like the "global village," the Hawarya global readership village is ever expanding, and now includes such important nations as Ethiopia, South Africa, Canada, China, France, Germany, Italy.

The global village. This month, in downtown Toronto, at "University Health Network," "UHN," we saw an example of these global concepts at work, "working" at saving lives, and perhaps, one day, "curing the incurable."

Dr Michael Fehlings, and UHN, one of the largest, most respected hospital groups in Canada and the world. The UHN vision: achieving global impact; transforming health care of patients, the community and the world. Very impressive mission statements, we thought, as we looked through UHN literature, and at a large wall poster, featuring a row of smiling, multicultural faces of UHN health care staff.

Then we were happily surprised as one of the very faces on the poster, greeted us in real life, with a friendly wave: Ms Amy Lem.

Doctor Michael Fehlings

We had the honour of meeting Ms Lem at a Chinese New Year event, where she graciously invited us to learn more about UHN, and her Director's programs, Dr Michael Fehlings, Medical Director of the Krembil Neuroscience Center Program, and the head of the Spinal Program at Toronto Western Hospital.

Like the African Canadian community, Ms Amy Lem is a great believer of community and global outreach. She, herself, comes from a respected Chinese Canadian family who immigrated to Canada in the Chinese diasporas of the 1950's and 1960's.

While giving us an explanation of the UHN program, Ms Lem noted, "Dr Fehlings is the recent 2009 recipient of the very respected, Olivecrona Award, a global medical award, likened by many to

Michael G. Fehlings MD PhD FRCS FACS
 Professor of Neurosurgery Krembil Chair in Neural Repair and Regeneration
 McLaughlin Scholar in Molecular Medicine Director, University of Toronto Neuroscience Program
 Co-Director, University of Toronto Spinal Program University of Toronto Medical Director, Krembil Neuroscience Center
 Head, Spine and Spinal Cord Injury Program
 Toronto Western Hospital, University Health Network

be the 'Nobel Prize' of Neuroscience."

Stem Cell Global Blueprint Conference, May 2010

Dr Fehlings is, indeed, one of the world's most respected neuroscience surgeons and scientists; including recent developments in the leading-edge research of stem cells; and he is deservedly very excited about his upcoming 2010 international venture, the "Stem Cell Global Blueprint Conference."

With attendees far-ranging, from around the world, such as China, Egypt, and India, to Brazil, Spain, and Britain, the mission of Dr. Fehlings's Conference in May 2010, is "to engage international stakeholders to develop a set of guidelines to assist the safe and timely translation of stem cells for spinal cord injury and related neurological disorders."

With a smile, Ms Lem helped us understand Dr Fehlings's genius, in layman's terms that we .

In essence, Dr Fehlings is heading up a conference, to bring together some of the world's top stem cell researchers, scientists, and other stakeholders, including government officials and patients; to develop global standards, best practices about stem cell research around the world, relating to spinal cord injury and related central nervous system disorders.

No doubt, one of the important issues at Dr Fehlings's Stem Cell Conference shall be consideration of the global ethical policies and ethos of stem cells, in both research and treatments.

While researchers in nations like Canada and the United States are still doing their research using rudimentary animal subjects, such as mice; other nations are already allowing stem cell TREATMENT for human patients. In fact, there have been several prominent cases of Canadians paralyzed by spinal injury, seeking such stem cell treatments in nations such as China, Portugal and India. In 2006, Ontario's Deering sisters were injected with millions of stem cells, as part of their treatment at China's Shenzhen Nanshan People's Hospital.

Perhaps, for people with spinal cord injury and neurological conditions, and their families, around the world, the possibilities of stem cell research are as huge as they may be distant.... One day, perhaps, people with spinal cord injury walking again?! Treatments for conditions like Alzheimer's, Multiple Sclerosis, Parkinson's. Truly, this is like curing the incurable...

With China as one of the world's greatest emerging nations and powers, and Africa's strategic resources and peoples, the friendship and goodwill between the governments and peoples of China and Africa has been expanding exponentially; as has China investments and ventures in Africa.

Like China, Africa recognizes that the world is indeed a global village, and that the future of our people and nations lie in seeking to leverage our riches and resources today.

Next month, we shall report on the results of the Global Blueprint Perhaps, one day soon, Hawarya shall be reporting on trilateral medical studies and programs between Canada's Dr Fehlings, Africa and China!

MELES ZENAWI: TRAMPLING ON INFORMATION RIGHTS

March 19/2010

With the same arrogance that Meles Zenawi has often expressed when he dismisses all calls for the release of political prisoners ("there are none in Ethiopia!"), he has now gone on record boasting that he will order the jamming of the VOA Amharic service. Actually, with the help of the Chinese, the Meles regime has already tried to jam the VOA, and has jammed for the last six months the Finote Democracy radio (a twice a week broadcast to Ethiopia in Amharic).

Meles Zenawi is a predator of the Free Press and at present most of the independent papers have been banned and their publishers and editors hounded into exile or burdened with huge fines. On the other hand, the regime, controls the media, radio and TV, and the FM radio (including the hate spouting Fana radio) belong to the ruling Tigrean front (TPLF) also known as EPRDF. The regime has trampled on the freedom speech, of the press and the right of the people to be informed. Many web sites have been blocked, censorship is active, and the jamming of the radios is but one example of the Meles regime's totalitarian ways.

That Meles Zenawi can come out openly boasting he will order the jamming of radios indicates the level of arrogance that the violator of rights has reached. With elections scheduled for May (and already deemed rigged), the regime is desperately trying the block the people's right to be informed, to know. China abets and aids in this violation of rights and deserves strong condemnation and those donors who sustain the brutal regime of Meles Zenawi should reconsider their policies and distance themselves from it.

HISTORY MADE IN A TORONTO COFFEE SHOP - TWICE?!

By Wei Lem

2010 Toronto --History is being made now already. Within decades, ethnic minorities shall become majorities in major cities of Canada and the entire U.S. Companies are seeking consumers; politicians and political parties seeking voters are racing to outreach to these emerging, dynamic ethnic communities.

As to history-making in a coffee shop? Firstly, on March 25, 2010, in Toronto, Canada's largest city, city Councillor Rob Ford, made history, announcing his candidacy, "I am running for Mayor." History-making, because this is the first Mayoralty candidate in recent Toronto history who has ever been labelled both as a "serious contender" by his admirers; and as a "redneck," "buffoon," and a "racist," by his critics.

Other leading candidates include Councillor George Mammoliti, former Deputy Premier, George Smitherman; former Liberal Party fundraiser Rocco Rossi; and Toronto's Deputy Mayor, Joe Pantalone. And one declared female contender, Women's Post Publisher, Sarah Thomson.

Some say Ford's announcement completes the field of serious mayoralty contenders. Is this a good sign of multiculturalism? With Councillor Ford's announcement, another Caucasian, white male joined the pack of leading contenders in the race for Mayor of Canada's largest city --a city where the visible minority population shall be the majority by 2031 (reported by official Canadian government agency, Statistics Canada, March 2010)

What are the implications of race newcomer, Councillor Ford, to Toronto's mayoralty race, and the future of Canada's largest city? What are the issues, positions of Councillor Ford and the other leading candidates vis-a-vis the various ethnic communities, the Ethiopian, pan African, and broader Toronto and Canadian society, and the world? Toronto is one of the world's most ethnically-diverse cities. In the next few months, leading up to the city election on October 25, 2010, Hawarya and I promise to dig deep for you, the readers, explore these issues, interview the candidates for Mayor and Councillors, for you, the people of Toronto.

In this month's Hawarya,

Councillor Rob Ford(front) welcoming his supporters arriving at the coffee shop, March 25/2010 at 7:00 am we begin with Councillor Rob Ford. Why? Because, that is how I both came to meet Hawarya Publisher Muluken Muchie, and came to write this article to you. At a small, local Toronto coffee shop where Rob Ford invited a small group of media, friends and supporters, to announce to them and the world that "I am running for Mayor."

First, first impressions of Publisher Muchie. Like many respected, successful community and business leaders, Mr Muchie was soft-spoken, gracious, humble as he introduced to me, the fascinating history of his community, Ethiopia Africa. Humble, as I had to delve into his wonderful personal story of success, triumph over adversity: he was a refugee from Ethiopia, who cried in despair after landing in Sudan; working hard, his efforts recognized, before subsequently being sponsored to Canada by the government of Canada and lived in Toronto, where he applied and successfully graduated from York University, and founded this paper, Hawarya, (the word means "apostle" in English) now one of Canada's largest and oldest Canadian Ethiopian, pan-African newspapers... How amazing.

What about me? I am from the Chinese Canadian community, today one of the most successful and dynamic immigrant waves to Canada; and now according to Canada's official census, the second most spoken language in Toronto, and the third most spoken in Canada. My parents immigrating to Canada in the 1950's, overcoming racism ("Chink Chinaman, go home"), meeting the many wonderful, decent Canadians; meeting each other and marrying; working hard to become successful, respected business and community leaders! Like other stories about ethnic immigrant waves to Toronto, I found Ethiopia and Ethiopian Toronto community history both sad and inspiring! From famine in the 1980's that killed over 1 million people, to economic and government collapse in the 1990's, Ethiopian Canadians now are emerging as a new, vibrant community in Toronto, numbering over 40,000 in Metro Toronto. Seeing significant parallels to the Chinese Canadian experience in Toronto, I must admit, I warmed quickly to the candid, articulate, ever-smiling, Muluken Muchie.

By the way, this is how I came to write this article, and offered to write more political analysis on the upcoming election. While we were awaiting Rob Ford's arrival on March 25, 2010, we chatted. I told Mr Muchie that I grew up around politics and ethnic and community relations, as my family raised me to strive always to seek outreach and understanding between peoples, communities, nations. Muchie told me, he wanted that too, for his Hawarya readership and the peoples of Toronto and the world too! Another moment of history-making in that little coffee shop on Queen Street?!

Rob Ford had invited us to the coffee shop, promising a "big announcement." Something "history-making?!" Muchie and I asked together, to Ford directly, as he walked into the coffee shop, shortly after 7 a.m.

Ford smiled, offered us donuts, and swore us to secrecy, as he replied, that he was waiting for a busload of friends and supporters to arrive, and then he would be saying aloud to them, this morning, for the first time in public, and then on 640 AM radio, to the people of city of Toronto, that he was indeed running for Mayor.

So it was that in that little local Toronto coffee shop, on Queen Street, Publisher Muchie and I watched history being made. Muluken Muchie: Ethiopia African refugee; turned newspaper Publisher and respected African Canadian community member; now also witness to next chapter of Toronto history in the making! Whether or not, Rob Ford wins --especially, if Rob Ford wins-- the mayoralty race of Toronto, Toronto is forever changed. On March 25, 2010, Rob Ford, a new right-wing candidate announced, arguably, THE most right-wing candidate yet, in the race for Mayor --in a city facing ever increasing taxes and users fee; declining services; a $9.2 Billion budget, projected property tax increases of 40% over the next 4 years!

What about Rob Ford's policies? We shall examine those along with the other candidates in the days and months to come. But given Hawarya's dynamic community and readership, and the multicultural dynamism of Toronto, we wanted today, to explore the racism charges hurled against Rob Ford, the man who would be Mayor of Toronto, and one of the world's most ethnically diverse cities. A city where by 2031, the visible minority population shall become the majority. If Rob Ford fails on this issue of human respect and diversity, there should be no need to speak about him or any of his policy positions.

So while waiting for that busload of Rob Ford supporters, Mr Muchie and I had a special, quiet moment with the candidate, the man who would be king?! We put it bluntly, "what about the critics who call Rob Ford, a racist? What about his 2008 comments about "Orientals working like dogs?"

Ford laughed, his answers direct and down-to-earth, as we learned is indeed his style. Firstly, Ford said, now warming to the critic charges of racism: how many people know his family company, Deco Label, where many workers and top management are ethnic Canadians. "In fact, we are probably more multicultural than the city of Toronto," Ford said, his tone, half joke, half challenge. Secondly, Ford notes, he has coached a boys football team in Toronto, and founded a Toronto-wide football program, to assist underprivileged boys, so they can channel their energy into the joys and challenges of sport. "Where is the media on that story?" Ford laments.

And what about that publicly recorded statement that Rob Ford made in 2008: "Orientals work like dogs" that caused a media fervor, and the occupation of city hall, outside of his office?

"A false issue, created by my critics," Ford replies. "Everyone knows, this phrase is meant as a compliment, to Orientals, to anyone it is said to. This phrase has a history, a context, a meaning in this country; that we appreciate and recognize the personal and work ethos and ethics of Asian peoples, of all the decent, hard-working people of Toronto... whose hard-earned wages and taxes are being mistreated, wasted now by Mayor Miller, his supporters on Council, and other politicians, including several of my opponents in the Mayor's race. Ford was obviously thinking in mayoralty mode already!

So thankfully, the frightening racism charges against Rob Ford may be for not. We shall explore his answers against the charges of racism, and report back to you. As to Ford's public policies and their effect on the ethnic communities, all the peoples of Toronto and Canada? We shall explore these, in the coming months with you. More taxes, less taxes? More services, less services? A vision of a city and a world emerging from recession, or heading into double-dipped recession?! Stay tuned.

Ford, Smitherman, Pantalone, Rossi, Thomson. And others... By the way, the only Chinese candidate to the mayoralty race, thus far, Mr Sonny Yeung is complaining that the "mainstream media" is not giving appropriate media time to his voice and that of other minority candidates.

No doubt, history is being made in Toronto by these candidates, who would be king --who would be Mayor of one of the most ethnically diverse and well known cities in the world.

Under the leadership of the next Mayor, Toronto shall be either a wasteland of lost opportunities and squandered tax dollars, or a future dynamic, global multicultural city of vibrant business, cultural and social opportunities to the peoples of Toronto, Canada and the world.

THE OPENING OF SPICE GARDEN RESTAURANT

Chef Vishwanath Gord speaks to our correspondent Jatin Naik on the opening of his new Restaurant in Brampton

Jatin Naik
njatin@yahoo.com

Where do you come from in India?

"In India, I was born in Nainital, Uttrakand. I have been cooking since the age of 12. Later on, I came to Mumbai to make a new beginning and started working with Pritam Group of Hotels. Soon with my hard work, I rose to the top. I use to prepare different kinds of dishes".

What kind of cuisines do you specialize in?

"My speciality is Indian & Chinese food. My most popular dishes are Butter Chicken, Goat Curry, Hyderabad Biryani, Shikari Kebab, Chinese – Chilli Chicken and Chicken Manchurian, Hakka noodles and Fried rice. And amongst vegetarian dishes are Veg – Muglai Paneer, Malai Kofta. Palak Panner and Palak Masala. Naan and Amritsari Kulcha".

When did you come to Canada?

"I came to Canada in December 2003. I am living in Canada since the past 6 years. Recently, an idea struck me. A restaurant without a good chef is no place to be! So I planned to open a new restaurant by bringing together the best chefs in Toronto area and achieve my dreams".

When are you starting the new restaurant, tell us something more on it.

"Recently, I came up with this idea. I saw a place in Brampton and I gathered some chefs. We had an initial meeting where I shared my idea to all the chefs and they were receptive and responsive to my thoughts. We agreed to form a company with a set number of people. We invited chefs as shareholders. The benefit here would be that the profits each person would earn would be in the same proportion as how much they invested as a shareholder".

How do you plan to carry forward the restaurant?

"I am the advisor, shareholder and the main Chef of this restaurant. We purchased the restaurant. My food quality would not match the restaurant so we broke the restaurant in order to renovate it. I had a dream of opening my own restaurant and that time has come close to fruition! However, we had a number of challenges on the way"

How did you overcome all those challenges?

"I came across many hurdles but I was determined to overcome all the problems. I had gathered over 10 chefs plus 2 restaurant owners to support me and we are now close to opening the restaurant. And although we had many challenges every step of the way we have all worked unitedly very hard. We are determined to make it a success by helping each other. We are inviting all senior citizens and children and free for one day and rest at 20% discount at the opening so all will be welcome. We will provide the exact date soon."

And where is the restaurant located?

"We are calling the restaurant 'Spice Garden'. Its located at Shoppers World mall in Brampton at the major intersection of Steeles and Hurontario. We have a very good location with so many businesses, residences, malls and shops in the vicinity. We are getting some very good response from the people. This is a central location. With our hard work we are determined to make it a success!"

What will be the speciality of this new restaurant?

"Quality food at reasonable rate. Bar and Tandoor place will have a new look. We are planning to have an open glass Tandoor where people can actually watch the chefs whirling 'Roomali Roti' and preparing 'Tandoori Roti' or 'Kulchas' and the bar will be unique and have Dhaba feel in its outlook. Other things would be: Fine dining, tile flooring, Indian ethnic style decoration, Dhaba feel at places, Veg, non-veg food will be served. Sweets and a special Indian Espresso coffee are the other features. We are also having a Party & Banquet hall in the next room. We are bringing speciality Handi Buffet as in olden times from India. For this we are bringing authentic handis from India. Food will be served as Buffet and 'a la carte'. Hyderabad Biryani will be a speciality and cooked and done in oven. And now, its time for the opening!"

Lufthansa announces extended service to Addis Ababa with additional connections on Ethiopian Airlines

This summer, Lufthansa makes it easier to share the rich history and colorful traditions of Ethiopia with the people you love: 13 months of sunshine, the sound of drumbeats announcing an afternoon service, the aroma of coffee beans roasted as you wait, and gathering with family to tear the injera and dip it in your favorite sauces.

Lufthansa announces extended service to Addis Ababa with additional connections on Ethiopian Airlines. To get there in comfort, we provide daily service from Toronto to our hub in Frankfurt, where quick, seamless connections to Bole International Airport (ADD) are available ten times per week, some made possible through our partner, Ethiopian Airlines.

Like you, we have roots in Africa

To offer this expanded timetable, we've partnered with Ethiopian Airlines, the flag carrier of Ethiopia. Ethiopian Airlines has grown to become one of the continent's leading carriers.

Lufthansa is proud of its forty-year history of service in Ethiopia and is very pleased that an increased demand has allowed for an expanded flight schedule.

The route will be served by an Airbus A340-300, offering exemplary service and excellent entertainment on personal video screens in all three classes. Choose from a wide selection of current films, audio books or music at the touch of a button, right from your fingertips.
