

The results of the survey on the Nature of Knowledge and Understanding were very accurate for my beliefs that knowledge is learned by the individual. The results show that I believe that knowledge is acquired over time through different practices. I think that knowledge changes and that no person ever has complete knowledge or can know everything. I believe that knowledge is obtained by individuals but can be shared by groups of people. I also believe that knowledge has to be discovered through research, teaching, and experience. Therefore, I place a lot of importance on learning and value the education I receive. So overall, I feel the survey was accurate to my beliefs.
