

Conclusion:

Where is This All Taking Us?

The secret to uniting mankind is to unite science and religion in light of ancient prophecy. New discoveries show that Genesis 1 is a scientific account, that Adam is a historical person, that the Garden of Eden was the temple garden in Eridu, that the flood of Noah was local, that the Sumerian language was confounded at the time of the Tower of Babel, that the Exodus and conquest occurred, and that the biblical Jesus did exist. These new discoveries, among others, will help to unite the world under the truths of the Bible, without the distortions of dogmatism.

But there are many other sources of spiritual truth. Ancient prophecies from every major religion point to the teachings of the Bahá'í Faith. This religion teaches that there are many paths to God. Still, most paths do not lead to Him. Thus it is not a restrictive religion; instead, it encourages people to worship God in the way that brings them the most joy. The Bahá'í laws will thus only apply to those who willingly accept them. Also, scientific criticism of the Bahá'í Faith will be allowed.

Therefore, this new religion involves much more than the Bahá'í Faith. It actually involves other great spiritual truths, such as aspects of the other major religions and even of Gnosticism. In fact, it will even include the biblical practice of White Magick. This has nothing to do with evil; instead, it is the technology used by God, the archangels, and the angels to literally work miracles. They have given us this technology to end disease, create paradise on earth, and to achieve perfection and bliss. When translated correctly, the Bible does not condemn White Magick; instead, it only condemns Black Magick.^{1 2}

It is not oppressive to obey the laws of God; instead, it leads to power and freedom. The world is sick. It can only be healed through the system that God, our loving Father, has outlined. This glorious World Order is called the Bahá'í Faith, in which each nation will be governed by a democratically elected National Spiritual Assembly under the international Universal House of Justice, which is elected by the National Spiritual Assemblies.

Each nation must first become democratic before the Most Great Peace can be achieved. They can then vote whether to accept or reject the authority of the Bahá'í Faith. After a nation accepts this authority, its people will not be forced to obey Bahá'u'lláh, but they will still be punished for crimes like stealing and violence. Money though will not corrupt the election process of people to the National Spiritual Assemblies or to the Universal House of Justice. Furthermore, the International Congress alone will have the power to create money, whereas private central banks, such as the United States Federal Reserve, destroy freedom and prosperity.

Chapter 1 documented that all things came from Pure Oneness. The universe is thus magickal. Thus we all have magickal power. Although specific magickal keys must be conferred, each of us has access to the power of God to some degree without the need to be ordained (although ordination is quite important). Magick is in truth throughout all of us.

One must understand that all religious ceremonies and prayers are magickal in nature. In other words, they are all the practice of magick. That is why they have power. However, ancient people understood this power better than most of us do today. They did not have our technology, but they had something with far more potential—spiritual power, or in other words, magick. It was not until mankind disbelieved in magick that this wisdom was for the most part lost. And thus God's children began to forget their own power, as they sought external means to solve their problems. We became more and more devoid of magick.

Europeans began to have great interest in the occult in the 1850s, during the ministry of Bahá'u'lláh. The word "occult" means "hidden."³ The hidden teachings of White Magick though have nothing to do with evil nor do they need to be feared. Although most people are probably not yet ready for White Magick, there are many people who are. Today there are those entrusted by God with magical knowledge—much of which came through the Ten Lost Tribes—who practice magick within temples dedicated to God. This ancient technology is documented in many, many volumes throughout the world. And although we must implement the many changes that Bahá'u'lláh has declared should happen, we must not stop there. Magick must be researched, practiced, and experimented with in a responsible manner. This will allow us to literally transform the world.

It is true that the Universal House of Justice has written:

We must use the Writings of the Prophets as our measurement. If Bahá'u'lláh had attached the slightest importance to occult experiences, to the seeing of auras, to the hearing of mystic voices; if He had believed that reincarnation was a fact, He, Himself, would have mentioned all of these things in His Teachings. The fact that He passed over them in silence shows that to Him, they had either no importance or no reality, and were consequently not worthy to take up His time as the Divine Educator of the human race.⁴

So, this is saying that, at present, most people should focus on building the foundation of the kingdom. Thus, for most people, the study of White Magick has "no importance" in their lives until after the full establishment of the Bahá'í World Order. There are, however, those who are called to the study and practice of White Magick before this. Their energy work will greatly help to raise the consciousness of humankind and usher in the Most Great Peace.

The truth is that, in the future, magickal technology will be used more and more; the Bahá'í Faith will become the main moral school for the masses; and orders such as the Golden Dawn will be schools that teach the magickal arts. In fact, magickal temples will eventually be built in every major city. And in time, the good of all will become so strong that evil will not even be desirable.

So, to help bring this about, spirituality (including the Bible, the Koran, and the Book of Mormon) will be reintroduced to the public school system in a non-dogmatic way (just as students are assigned to read and critique secular books). This will then help to reduce violence, other crimes, teen pregnancy, sexually transmitted diseases, divorce rates, and so on. This is known because after God was taken out of the school system in 1962-1963 all of these societal ills rose dramatically.⁵ In this future, no one religion will be honored; instead, all the good religions of the world will be studied to some degree. This future beckons to us with bright hope, happiness, and peace. We must act now to bring it about. We must know that it is within our grasp.

Well, this is the end of the main part of this book. Hopefully, the ideas in it have stirred you towards further good; indeed, its main points are valid and important for all humankind. Please find out more about the Bahá'í Faith, Mormonism, and the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn (the outer order of the Rosicrucian Order of Alpha et Omega).⁶ This order though should not be confused with the fake Golden Dawn orders. Hopefully, you are less fearful of White Magick, and, most importantly, I hope that this book helps to make the world a peaceful place. May mankind be transformed by the Light of God is my prayer. Amen.

¹ Gideon Bohak, Ancient Jewish Magic: A History (New York: Cambridge University Press, 2008), 8-69.

² Alexei Kondratiev, "Thou Shalt not Suffer a Witch to Live: an Enquiry into Biblical Mistranslation," Enchanté: The Journal for the Urbane Pagan, no. 18, 1994, (Updated July 2000), pp. 11-15.

³ Chic Cicero and Sandra Tabatha Cicero, The Essential Golden Dawn: An Introduction to High Magic (St. Paul: Llewellyn Worldwide, 2003), 37, 278.

⁴ Hornby, Lights of Guidance, 521

⁵ David Barton, America: To Pray or Not to Pray (Aledo: WallBuilders Press, 1994)

⁶ Official Websites of: the Bahá'í Faith: <http://www.bahai.org/>; the Mormon Church: <http://www.mormon.org/>; and the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn: <http://golden-dawn.com/eu/index.aspx>