

NOTICE

CONTRIBUTORS

There are NO publishing fees. As an active contributor, you are under no obligation to purchase a copy or subscription to the Curious Record. The Curious Record does not offer monetary payment to contributors.

For further information regarding contributing and subscriptions, please email or mail.

By submitting your work to the Curious Record, you hereby acknowledge and agree that the work you are submitting is of your own creation and that you hold copyright and that the work submitted has not been published prior to submission or is not currently under consideration to be published by another periodical or publisher and has not received monetary payment.

In the event your work(s) are published, copyright remains with you, the author/artist/poet. Under Australian law, your works are copyrighted for life, plus seventy years. You are not required to use the © symbol or write the word copyright. However, upon publication we will attach the © symbol along with the legal name of the author/artist/poet to each work represented.

If you wish for your posted submissions, used and unused to be returned, please include a business size SASE with sufficient postage along with your submission, so we can return your work(s). For our international contributors, please enclose International Reply Coupons along with your self-addressed envelope. We recommend you contact us prior to submitting, so we can inform you of the correct return postage price. For more information on International Reply Coupons ask your local post office or agency.

Student author's, artist's and poet's in Kindergarten through to Year 12 please include your grade/year, your school and your age if you desire.
