

out and ABOUT

Cognition loved Joel's race. So many people came out- quite the photo op extravaganza. Everybody got some great photos and here are some more! Check out the sliders at Esmerelda.

Every time a friend dies, the song -beyond the realms of death- from Judas priest goes through my mind non stop. Robert is my friend and I am going to miss him. He pissed me off so many times when I was in a band with him, but you couldn't stay mad at him for long. He had that puppy dog look when you were mad at him, he used it on his bosses when he was habitually late, and he used it on his friends as well.

Robert was the most talented musician I ever new. His talent did not stop at just playing his instrument, he was a great performer with a electric stage presence, it was as if his guitar was playing him. He is possibly the best karaoke performer I have ever seen. He rarely looked at screen and was always looking at the crowd as he sang with passion.

Robert also loved bikes, he had some of the coolest looking old bikes. He had this old road bike that was probably from the 50s that was bright orange and weighed about 50 lbs, it was the coolest bike I have ever seen.

photos of Robert Josen courtesy of Scott and A Terisa

Unfortunately Robert was taken from us before his time, and his death has rocked my world as well as many others. I just want to play one more song with him and I'll never get that chance. Goodbye my friend. Love Scott

