

Word Games & Mysteries

by Jack Healey

Sometimes words mask truths untold.
The sleuth looks close for clues and signs.
Be wary of the treasured finds
In case they lead you way off course.

The surest key is slow and sure
With every thought and step you take.
It happens most when least expected
That things go wrong and pictures change.

Deception comes in many guises
So don't be fooled by skillful artists
Who love the game of cat and mouse
And seek to trap less wary souls.
