

Form The Desk Of Next Generation Gaming President Dragonmaster

Dear fellow video gamer,

Welcome to the new Next Generation Gaming website. We know that the site has been changed many times, but with new software in hand we finally are able to bring you a site you deserve. We've added many new features, including the Next Generation Gaming Search Division or NGGSD. The NGGSD focus on one game and is constantly speculating on what will happen with it, it's the future of video gaming news and you saw it here first. We also are proud to tell you that not only will the Game Cube be represented on this new site but the PS2 and Xbox well be as well. Also a new feature for you the viewer, not only will we be getting information from interviews with store managers of the top video game dealers, or researching off the top video gaming sites, but we will also be using you as well thanks to our new NGGSD message board you can post information for us to include in our next story, and you will be credited with the information you gave (if you're the first one to put it up). We also look forward to starting an anime section and adding many new exciting features for your viewing pleasure. Thank and check back again soon.
