

READING & BOOK SIGNING EVENT

Join us with Audrey Streetman as we explore the rich universe of her poetry through the pages of her latest book TIME.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Audrey Streetman earned her living as a commercial loan officer for thirty-five years while also working on her craft as a poet. She has published dozens of poems in magazines and literary journals. She also published three poetry chapbooks, one of which was a finalist in the Oklahoma Book Awards. In 2016 she published a collection of her work titled "Deep Calls to Deep" which was also a finalist in the Oklahoma Book Awards.

After retiring from a banking career she wrote a memoir "The Well," about growing up in Texas in the 1940s and continuing with banking in the 1980s. Many of her poems reflect her rural heritage and life in Oklahoma which she has called home since 1967. Audrey lives in Oklahoma City, has three daughters, eight grandchildren and recently three great grandchildren.

TIME ~ Poems by Audrey Streetman

In "Inheritance" a poem in Audrey Streetman's new collection TIME, she writes, "I crack open my past looking for heirlooms." That is what this new volume offers us—heirlooms, to savor and save. Her style ranges from narrative to succulently lyrical to spare and condensed as Japanese haiku or tanka. By the book's end, we have poignant and acute glimpses into her life, her faith, her struggles and losses, and the honesty she brings to these. The poems in TIME are worth turning to and returning to. ~ Carol Davis Koss
