

Eugene D. Alpern (#2049) found this cut strip which provides an identification for U.S. pattern S182.5, which isn't identified in the new U.S. catalog. The user is Texas Cement Plaster Company of Oklahoma City. It's possible, if not likely, that there are other users of the pattern still to be found since the SMG doesn't seem to have much to do with the Texas Cement Plaster Company—at least not at first glance. It's possible that the company was using a stray stamp or that the company acquired the perforator during a merger. Can anybody provide any background about the company? The 1929 cancel reads Let's Go/
