I was born in Toronto at Toronto General Hospital on May 20, 1954 and was adopted by my step-father, ^(cher BP) ^(get birth) ^{Austrian} who met my ^{married + pregnant} natural birth mother of German-French blue blood descent. I never knew my natural father, Raised in Etobicoke, our family moved to Hawkestone, Ontario, a small town north of Toronto, now called Oro-Medonte, where I finished high school. highlight for me was playing Gertie in our high school's production of Oklahoma, in which Gertie fought with Annie and Laurie for the affections of Curly. I did well in school, was an Ontario scholar, stood first in my county and won 3 scholarships. ^(+ performed ballet 3rd grade - on pointe) ^{Principals pet} My parents took me to Europe where I had a revelation at the Paris airport. A blonde woman with an updo, similar to Ivana Trump's look, was immersed in a conversation with several men. I overheard my mother tell my stepfather that she must be a call girl. I then made a mental note that I ^{wanted to be one one day.} When I was 15, I dated a 21 year old judo instructor named Norman who was a student at OCA ^(Ontario College of Art)

I met my ^{generous} ^{almost} ^{partly} ^{Happy Hooker} Dutch girlfriend Xenia Hollander through the town party circuits. I subsequently divorced my husband, although he contested it to the bitter end. We sold our condo, my husband ^{bought} ^{of the condo} ^{at one point, a sugar daddy} but my share, and I found an apartment at Sutton Place Hotel. My job as secretary to Stan ^{at National Ball of + Olympus} ^{camera owner} Colbert, head of CBC's variety department, earned me $200 a week. Stan told me, "Now that you're single again you should live it up", so I did. Soon I was dating many men, including Klaus, a wealthy

In order to pay off my lawyer for my expensive divorce I worked as an escort from 1981 to 1984, earning $300 per hour and going out 3 times a week. My feeling was that it beats giving it away. ^[Later] In one night I was able to make $1000, although I paid 40% of my earnings to my agency. I moved to an apartment on Roxborough Road in Rosedale. One of my ^{own} clients, a millionaire whose wife was terminally

Precedent:

I have edited 100+ books for academic and commercial publishers (University of California Press, Stanford University Press, Cornell University Press, Oxford University Press, HarperCollins Publishers, Warner Books, Sierra Club Books, University of California Art Museum, Lawrence Hall of Science, Wadsworth Publishing Company, Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Films, etc.), edited 100+ doctoral dissertations and master's theses, and edited, rewritten, or ghostwritten countless creative projects for and with individual clients.

As an EDITOR, I usually read your writing aloud to you, in person or online. In that way, you can respond immediately to all my questions and suggestions, and we can fix things as we go along. I also copyedit the manuscript during this phase, correcting grammar, spelling, punctuation, etc. I usually do not read manuscripts in advance, but prefer to share my reactions with you as they occur. On occasion, I edit material in the old-fashioned way, without the presence of the author. As Plato said, however, a book is a dead man (or woman), in the sense that it cannot answer questions put to it, so I prefer, whenever possible, to work with live clients. On the other hand, if you strongly prefer the traditional method, I recommend that we have one hands-on session so that you can show me exactly what you want me to do--and not do. After that I can proceed alone.

As a WRITER (or co-writer, acknowledged or not), I work with you in numerous ways, depending on what works best for you. One method is to interview you with a recorder running, and then have the recording transcribed, which gives us the first draft of material. (Half an hour of conversation yields about 20 double-spaced pages of raw text; thus a 2-hour session generates about 80 raw pages of text, and a 3-hour session generates about 120 pages of raw text, far more than anyone could ever write.) Of course, you can always talk to a recorder yourself, but most people prefer talking to another person, and it doesn't hurt if that other person asks intelligent and penetrating questions, which may take the conversation in interesting unanticipated directions. Sometimes clients prefer to talk to me, and I write as we go. Other clients may prefer to bring in a rough draft, and we rewrite that. Or we may craft an outline together, you write at home from that, and we edit your draft together. In some cases, we may use all of these methods...or any others we devise.

As a DESKTOP PUBLISHER, I prepare page layouts for book projects that I have edited or helped to write. After that, all you need to do is get the book printed on demand and/or turned into an e-book. Alternatively, I can help you to submit the book to agents or publishers. . . or the screenplay or stage play to agents or producers.

Current feather in my own cap: My author-approved stage adaptation of THE CLOWN, a novel by Heinrich Boll, winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1972, will be published and produced in London during the coming year.
